Former superintendent objects to emergency well repair report

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Billy Sills, former Hancock County School District superintendent of education, appeared at a Monday morning School Board meeting to object to statements offered at a Saturday morning meeting regarding emergency repair work.

William Haddock, interim superintendent appointed by the board after Sills was automatically removed from office after pleading guilty recently to an embezzlement and fraud charge, reported Saturday that three quotations were not obtained for repairs of a well pump at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School in Pearl.

Sills Monday stated, "I was instructed by the board to get three quotes and I got three quotes, but I don't know where they are and frankly I could care less."

Haddock replied the three quotations were not entered in the minutes of an April 23 meeting and only one from Braden Pump and Well Service, Inc. of Gulfport is listed.

The former superintendent said the "full facts" regarding the well pump work were not revealed at the Saturday meeting.

A report in the April 23 issue of "The Sea Coast Echo" states Sills at the April 23 meeting said classes were cancelled at the school at noon on April 14 because the well pump broke down and water was not available to operate restrooms.

Woodrow Ladner, a board member, reported the school board directed Sills to repair the pump at a cost of $400.

Ladner also said Braden workmen discovered the pump could not be repaired and could be replaced at a cost of $2,500.

At the Monday morning meeting, Ladner stated, "When you (Sills) called me, you told me the repairs were under $500. The next thing I knew we had a new pump."

The April 23 report further states that Sills instructed Braden to install a new pump so school could resume on April 15.

Ladner reported the board could not be contacted by Sills at that time to declare the situation an emergency.

Therefore, the board declared a retroactive emergency for the well repairs.

The board directed that an explanation of the action be included in the minutes and a bill from Braden returned with instructions it again be submitted with phased costs apparently to bring the work under the $1,500 mark.

State law requires at least three quotations for any goods or services purchased by a government agency which exceeds $1,500.

Monvel Cuevas, board president, read a letter addressed to the board from J.D. Penton, C.B. Murphy principal, commending Sills for his action which allowed classes to continue the following day.

At the Monday meeting Sills noted a legal opinion of his actions regarding the well work was sought by Cuevas from Joseph Gex, board attorney, and not from the State Attorney General's office as reported in the Sunday issue of the Echo.

Johnny Banks, a board member, stated, "You (Sills) said they had problems at Charles B. Murphy. A new pump was not brought to our attention."

"I didn't see any quotes," he added. Haddock said if three quotations were obtained that the minutes from the April 23 meeting should have stated Braden submitted the lowest bid.

Earlier in the meeting called to meet with Gex, the board re-affirmed that an emergency situation exists at this school because classes are scheduled to begin next week which does not allow time for the normal bidding process, and instructed Haddock to obtain three quotations for the pump replacement.

Regarding the outstanding payment to Braden, Gex said the board would be responsible for some $1,100 in labor charges incurred by the company.

Banks stated, "It seems like $1,100 is a hell of a lot for labor." Board members George and Woodrow Ladner and Banks attended the Monday meeting.

Banks opposed re-affirming the emergency and seeking the three quotations. Those two motions passed in 21 votes.

Gex and Haddock left the meeting for several minutes to explain the board's action in a telephone conversation with a well company representative.

The attorney returned to report he concurred with the board's action and the company representative also was satisfied.

Haddock said regarding his Saturday report of the well impurity, that Louis Fernandez of the Hancock County Health Department feels when the well is operable, the problem will be remedied.

Bay school trustees table bids

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Bids for restroom renovation work at Bay Junior High School were tabled by the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees Tuesday night because the officials feel the estimates are too high.

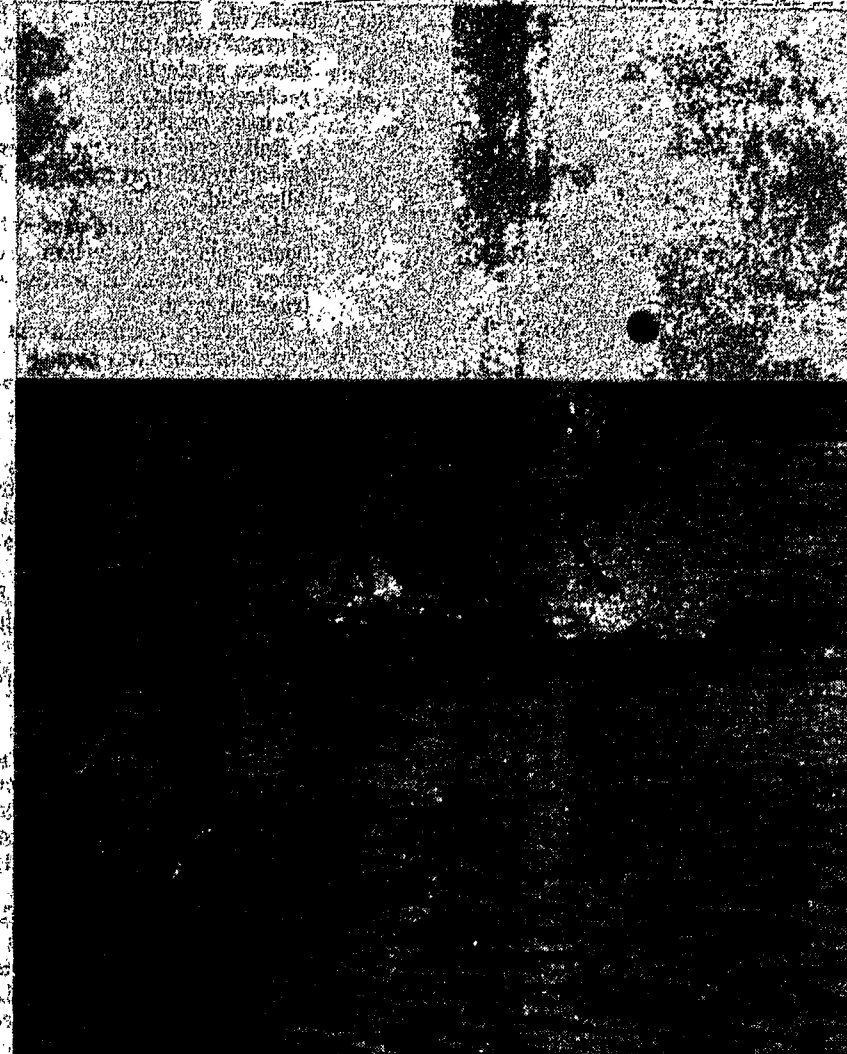

The trustees met in a special session to open bids for the work and discuss those quotations with Fred Wagner of Bay St. Louis district architect.

Wagner explained the project calls for the complete renovation of an inoperative second floor restroom and conversion of a first floor restroom into a photographic darkroom.

The board received two bids which included a $11,000 quotation from Arhigues Construction Co. of Bay St. Louis with an estimated construction time of 30 days and a $17,135 estimate from Southern Builders of Pass Christian for a 60-day work period.

The trustees said he estimated the work would cost some $12,000, but could not offer suggestions to reduce the contractors' estimates.

Walter Thibodeaux Jr., Waveland, board president, and Cyril Glover of Bay St. Louis, board member, also attended.

CLEAN FUN?—Three unidentified swimmers frolic in the waters between Bay St. Louis and Waveland. While the fun may be clean, the water may not. According to information made available to communities along the coast each month, water pollution standards can vary greatly. An area which may be safe for swimming today could change to a possible health risk tomorrow. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Arsonist sought by Hancock squad

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Hancock County Sheriff's Department Arson Investigation Squad is attempting to determine who ignited a fire which destroyed a house trailer at the corner of Longfellow and Chapman Roads near Waveland Friday night.

Ed Friloux of BaySide Park and the squad, Wednesday morning said a fire was reported to the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department by the trailer resident, Michael Schwall, at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

William Field Jr., department administrative chief, Wednesday said East Hancock responded to the blaze along with the Waveland Fire Department.

He reported the blaze of electrical origin was quickly extinguished and the trailer sustained minor damage, but the arson squad was called to the scene.

Friloux stated, "The fire originated in electrical wiring due to a violation of national electrical codes, but we have no authority to enforce these codes."

The investigator explained the trailer had 14-gauge wiring in bad condition, oversized fuses were placed in the fuse box and circuit plates were missing.

He further explained that much of the wiring coating was melted due to improper use, so electrical service was disconnected from the trailer.

Friloux said firefighters left the residence at 8:40 p.m., but were summoned again at 9:40 p.m. by a neighbor reporting another fire at the trailer.

The Bay St. Louis Fire Department responded with the other two departments to the second fire which was engulfing the trailer when units arrived, Friloux said.

He noted in spite of the extensive fire, the departments were able to extinguish the fire and save half of the trailer structure where the first fire erupted.

Friloux said the arson squad and Deputy State Fire Marshal Norman Cowart of Wiggins were called after the second blaze which is partially the result of arson.

"We used petroleum solvents and other forensic devices to attempt to determine the origin and cause of the fire," he stated.

"No one is charged, but the fire is under investigation and we have some suspects," Friloux added.

The investigator said no one was at the trailer when the second fire erupted.

Schwall allegedly had driven some friends home and discovered the fire when he returned. Friloux stated.

The investigation is being handled with information leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist can receive up to a $1,000 reward from the state and the Mobile Home Association of America.

He also urged anyone with information about the fire to contact any member of the squad or the sheriff's department.

WAVELAND FIRE
The Waveland department quickly extinguished at recent fire which damaged Vernon Ladner's 418 Old Spanish Trail residence in that city, Assistant Chief Gerald (Rusty) Price III reported this week.

Price said the department received a telephone call at 4:57 a.m. Aug. 2 of the fire which apparently started in a closet under a stairway, spread to a nearby room and burned a portion of a second-floor hallway.

Two pumpers and nine firefighters fought the fire and controlled the blaze in about 20 minutes, he noted.

He reported Ladner was the only person injured.

Bay pollution rises after sewer break

By BRENT MACEY
Pollution near Bay of St. Louis rose sharply in June, apparently the result of a sewer main break in the Cedar Point area of the city that month.

Water samples taken at St. Stanislaus on South Beach Boulevard by the Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control and analyzed by the State Board of Health show that a fecal coliform count rose to 24,000 per 100 milliliters of water that month.

A count of 200 parts per 100 milliliters of water is considered unsafe for recreational swimming, according to Joe Brown, director of the bureau of Environmental Health with the State Health Department.

Brown explained that fecal coliform is a harmless bacteria associated with fecal discharge.

"It's usually not considered a pathogen. It is a normal inhabitant of the stomach," he said.

However, the fecal coliform bacteria is associated with other more harmful pathogens which can cause diseases including, typhoid fever, cholera or yellow fever, Brown said.

He said high counts of fecal coliform usually indicate that other more harmful pathogens are present.

Since testing for the more harmful pathogens is more difficult than testing for fecal coliform, tests are conducted to determine the amount of fecal coliform present in water samples.

A safe water standard set by the State Bureau of Pollution Control requires that average fecal coliform count not exceed 200 colonies per 100 milliliters.

The standard also requires that not more than 10 percent of any of the samples taken during a monthly period exceed 400 counts per 100 milliliters.

During June, all samples taken at St. Stanislaus — approximately one per week— were above 400 counts for 100 milliliters of water.

One other area tested weekly in the Bay-Waveland area included a sample taken at the Gulf Methodist Association in Waveland.

Although samples in that area usually indicate that area is somewhat cleaner than the Bay, samples in May showed those water were unsafe for swimming.

In May the fecal coliform count at the Methodist Association showed an average count of 311 per 100 milliliters of water.

That count dropped to 25 in June and no samples taken during that month exceeded 400 counts per 100 milliliters of water.

Robert Seyfarth, coordinator of the Water Quality Management Section of the Bureau of Pollution Control, noted the counts will often fluctuate monthly.

He attributed those fluctuations to several different possible reasons, including the amount of rainfall, or the upcropping a sewer malfunction in an area located near where samples are taken.

Seyfarth noted that most areas along the coast were "pretty good" during the early part of the summer.

However he stated there has been an increase in fecal coliform levels recorded these past few months along the entire coast. He attributed that increase to heavy rainfall.

"Whenever it gets into a rainy season, anything which may have accumulated in a storm drain will eventually get washed down into the Mississippi Sound," he said.

In the case of Bay St. Louis, the fecal coliform count dropped after the sewer main leak was repaired.

However, the count for August was 2,400 per 100 milliliters of water, and well above standards set for recreational water.

Coast water samples below clean standards

By BRENT MACEY
Of ten swimming areas along the Mississippi Gulf Coast which are sampled weekly by the Bureau of Pollution Control, only six regularly conform to standards set for recreational waters.

The four areas which normally show bacterial counts above the mean set for recreational swimming include an area near St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis, an area near Courthouse Road in Gulfport, an area near Caillivet Street in Biloxi, and the Ocean Springs Harbor.

Bacterial counts in those areas showed recreational water standards were not met in 1979, 1980 or 1981.

Final tabulations are not yet available for 1982.

Counts, however, show that some of those areas come closer to meeting those recreational water standards than other areas did during those years.

HWY. 603 TRAFFIC STOPPERS—Drivers along Hwy. 603 were momentarily delayed late Monday morning as both lanes of the highway were blocked by a metal building being moved along the roadway. An unidentified person rides on top of the building, above, as it is transported along the highway near the Longfellow Road intersection. Deputy Nathan Hoda of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, who escorted the wide load, Wednesday said the building was moved from St. Rose de Lima School in Bay St. Louis to an unknown location in Harrison County. Traffic was also temporarily halted on the highway, below, in the Shoreline Park area early Tuesday evening as members of National Guard Co. D of the 205th

Engineering Battalion free a tractor-trailer rig which apparently got stuck in road shoulder mud. Sam Perniciaro, County District Four supervisor, Wednesday said the company is transporting riprap at Buccaneer State Park in Waveland to the Salmen Scout Reservation near the Sellers Community where a reservoir spillway is being reinforced. Steven Doty, Salmen ranger, Wednesday said some five dump trucks are transporting the material and the rigs are moving various machinery used to fill the trucks. He said the project, a public service effort by the company, should be completed this week. (Staff photos by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Manslaughter charged in Bay, Pass accidents

Alcohol was cited as involved in another Pass Christian highway death this week.

Billy Edwards Jr., 32, of Alliance, N.C., was killed early Tuesday morning when the motorcycle he was riding collided head-on with a car on U.S. 90 in Pass Christian.

James M. Hall, 54, Rt. 1, Box 454, Daleville, driver of the car, has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, manslaughter, and reckless driving, said Ed Alley, Pass Christian chief of police.

Hall is confined to the Harrison County Jail in Gulfport under $10,362 bond, Alley said.

Hall was traveling east in the west-bound lane about 1:20 a.m., Alley said, when he struck Edwards who was traveling west.

The wreck occurred about 325 feet east of Shadowlawn Avenue.

Edwards was visiting relatives on the Coast. A native of Newbern, N.C., he was a sandblaster.

He is survived by his wife, Jennifer Sue Ireland Edwards; his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Bunting, Pass Christian, and his father, Billy Edwards Sr. of Washington, N.C.

The body will be sent from Riemann Funeral Home, Gulfport, to the Norris Funeral Home in Alliance for the funeral and burial in the Grantsboro Cemetery.

A Bay St. Louis man was arrested Sunday on manslaughter charges stemming from a July 20 traffic accident on the US-90 Bay of St. Louis bridge apparently resulting from alcohol use.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson Wednesday said George Anderson Jr., 35, of 600 Esplanade Avenue in Bay St. Louis was arrested based on an arrest warrant issued by Justice Court Judge Vernon Ladner in Harrison County District Three.

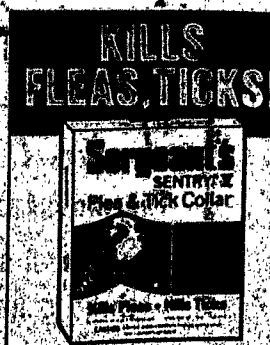

The Bay St. Louis man was originally charged with driving under the influence of alcohol.

Anderson was released Sunday on $10,000 bond, the sheriff noted.

"Anderson was charged as a result of an investigation conducted by the State Highway Patrol," Peterson stated.

The sheriff cited the accident claimed the life of Amanda Carter of Spanish

Alley Drive in Bay St. Louis. He added that Anderson was charged in Harrison because the traffic accident occurred on that side of the bridge.

Three and a-half years have passed since your were so suddenly taken from us.

God saw you getting weary, He did what He thought best.

He came and stood beside you and whispered "come and rest."

You bid no one farewell; not even goodbye. You were gone before we knew it and only God knows why.

It broke our hearts to lose you. But you did not go alone.

For part of us went with you the day God called you home.

God gave us strength to bear it, courage to take the blow.

Louis, a trustee, both said companies generally increase estimates for government projects.

Glover, a former Bay St. Louis commissioner, reported that those increases are usually about 20 percent and recommended the projects be undertaken in phases to help reduce costs.

Wagner said he would work with the board in any way in order to save the district money.

The architect reported although his fee is more than six percent that he would not make any money on the relatively small project.

J.D. McCullough, superintendent of education, recommended Wagner negotiate with the contractors to try to secure a reduced price for the work.

Wagner agreed with a recommendation by Turcotte for district maintenance personnel to remove second floor restroom fixtures and flooring so contractors could get a better idea of the extent of rotted wood in order to possibly provide lower quotations.

Betty Diboll of Waveland, a trustee, asked if the district could hire a person who could perform all construction tasks and save system money.

McCullough replied that it is hard to find a person who is licensed in a variety of construction skills.

The board members agreed to meet in special session if a lower quotation is secured by Wagner.

McCullough said he would notify the press beforehand if the special session is conducted.

Adult Learning Center guides students to GED

A free Tutor Training Workshop will be held in the library at Gulfport High School Saturday, August 14, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The Adult Learning Center is the largest literacy program in the state, and with the Community Education brochure, mail-out in September, many new students will enter the program.

Each Tuesday and Thursday, night, in Room 101, at Gulfport High School, tutors and students meet to check in and then, paired one to one, go to separate rooms to spend one and one-half hours in learning to read and write. This is the most efficient way for adult students to learn to read.

Last Thursday night, seven students needed tutors. An additional 15 students are waiting at home for more trained tutors to enroll in the program and volunteer their services so they can learn to read.

The Adult Learning Center uses Laubach materials as the core curriculum, but other materials from varied sources are used as needed to meet additional needs.

All training, books, and materials are free of charge to tutors and students. Besides the five skill books which each student must master, there are an additional 40 books available which appeal to adult interests and are on a level which they can understand.

Students are required to read ten of these and are encouraged to read as many of the others as they can.

This program is approved by the State Department of Adult Education in Mississippi and serves as a model for other school systems.

It has been recognized on the National level and a description of the Gulfport Adult Learning Center's Literacy Program has been published by the U.S. Department of Education under the Office of Educational Research and Improvement at the National Institute of Education in September 1980.

It was included in the National publication, "The Adult Illiterate Speaks Out: Personal Perspectives On Learning To Read And Write."

When adults complete grades 1-5 of the literacy program, they are guided into the "Adult Basic Education" program, grades 6-8, and then they are encouraged to enter the GED program and earn a high school diploma. Zero through the 8th grade is free; students do pay a fee for GED training.

We have a few students who entered the Adult Learning Center barely able to write their own names, and now they are almost ready to leave the GED center with a GED Certificate which is equivalent to a high school diploma.

More than 700 students were involved in Gulfport's Adult Education Program last year.

Besides the literacy program, ABE, and GED, students also come to the Adult Learning Center to learn English as a Second Language, study citizenship books to prepare for the test so they can become U.S. citizens, or to reach particular goals which they have set for themselves.

To obtain a driver's license or to fill out job application forms would be examples of these personal goals.

This is a comprehensive program designed to meet individual needs. We welcome you to serve as a volunteer tutor in the Adult Learning Center. If you have already received Laubach training somewhere else, if you need training, we will teach you what you need to know to teach another adult to read and write.

We think of America as a land of opportunity for all people, yet more than 6,000 adults in Harrison County can neither read nor write, and an additional 14,000 operate at below the fifth grade level in basic skills.

The literacy program is a cooperative effort between Ms. Frances Adkins, Director of Senior Aides, and Gulfport Municipal School's Community Education Program.

To enroll in the tutoring workshop, contact Mrs. N.V. Williams, Coordinator of the Adult Learning Center, at 832-8757 or the Community Education Office at 868-1172.

State museum exhibiting quilts

A collection of early twentieth-century quilts from Newton County's Doolittle family will be exhibited at the State Historical Museum, Jackson, beginning Aug. 15.

The collection comprises twenty-two quilts made by Mary Cornelia Doolittle and her daughters, Kate and Effie. Tony Womack of Jackson, owner of the collection, noted, "Most of the quilts were made for decoration and competition; not for utilitarian purposes; therefore, they are in extremely good condition."

The Doolittle ladies, from a prosperous Newton County family, found the leisure time available for stitching the quilts. Primarily using traditional patterns, they sewed quilts such as Pickle Dish, Grandmother's Cross, Cat's Cradle and Tulip Ladyfingers Variation.

Museum director, Patti Carr Black, impressed with the quality of the quilts, said, "I have never seen such a well-preserved collection from a single family."

The exhibit will be on the second floor of the State Historical Museum, Old Capitol Restoration, through September 26, and is free of charge to the public. The Museum, a historic restored building, contains exhibits on Mississippi history and a sales shop with Mississippi books and crafts.

The Museum is open seven days a week, and more information may be obtained by calling 354-6222.

Bits 'n pieces

Congratulations are in order for A.A. (Dolph) Kellar on his being elected as the chairman of the executive committee of the Mississippi Association of Supervisors.

Kellar, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, has been serving the people of this county for over 20 years.

We feel it is a special honor for him to be selected to this prestigious position by his peers.

Several of the merchants on the Beach in Bay St. Louis have expressed an appreciation to the city for the cleaning and up-grading of the Municipal Parking Lot.

The repainting of the lines and general cleanup have done wonders and we hope the persons using the public facility will try and keep it clean.

It is now a very nice parking lot, so let's try and keep it that way.

We received a letter from Jeanne-Marie Bell on behalf of the Waveland Junior Players expressing appreciation for recent publicity we had given their organization in regards to summer activities for children.

A portion of Ms. Bell's letter we feel is worth repeating and we will pass it on.

"...Because of the enthusiasm of the children and their parents, we have decided to expand our program for the summer of 1983.

"Activities under consideration include vaudeville show with and all-child cast, classes in acting and stagecraft, a puppet theater and/or a clown troupe...."

The word which really caught our attention was 'enthusiasm' by both children and their parents.

It is good to hear there are a few parents who are concerned with the activities of their children.

We wish the Waveland Junior Players a good season in 1983.

The frequent rains in recent weeks have caused many ant hills to become visible in our yards.

John Smith, county agent called us Wednesday to report his office now has some fire ant bait for residents to use around their residences.

It is limited to one pound per family, and if you are having ant problems you may want to visit the County Agent's office of Necaise Avenue in Bay St. Louis and acquire a package.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is the co-sponsors of the program that provides this service to residents.

Doctors urge caution in using insecticides

(Presented as a public service by the Mississippi State Medical Association and The Sea Coast Echo)

Are the bugs eating up your garden? Most insects can be knocked out with insecticides, powders and other poisons, but the unwary gardener himself sometimes can suffer from the effects of the bug spray.

The Mississippi State Medical Association offers some tips on proper and safe use of insecticides.

Read the directions on the container carefully and follow them. The manufacturer spells out the proper usage and safety precautions. If the directions call for rubber gloves, protective clothing, or goggles, leave this to you are an expert.

Store the insecticide in its original container, with original label, in a safe, locked compartment, away from children and pets.

Destroy empty containers immediately.

Avoid inhaling sprays and dusts. Stay out of freshly sprayed areas.

Do not smoke while spraying or dousing.

If chemicals spill on the skin, wash immediately and thoroughly.

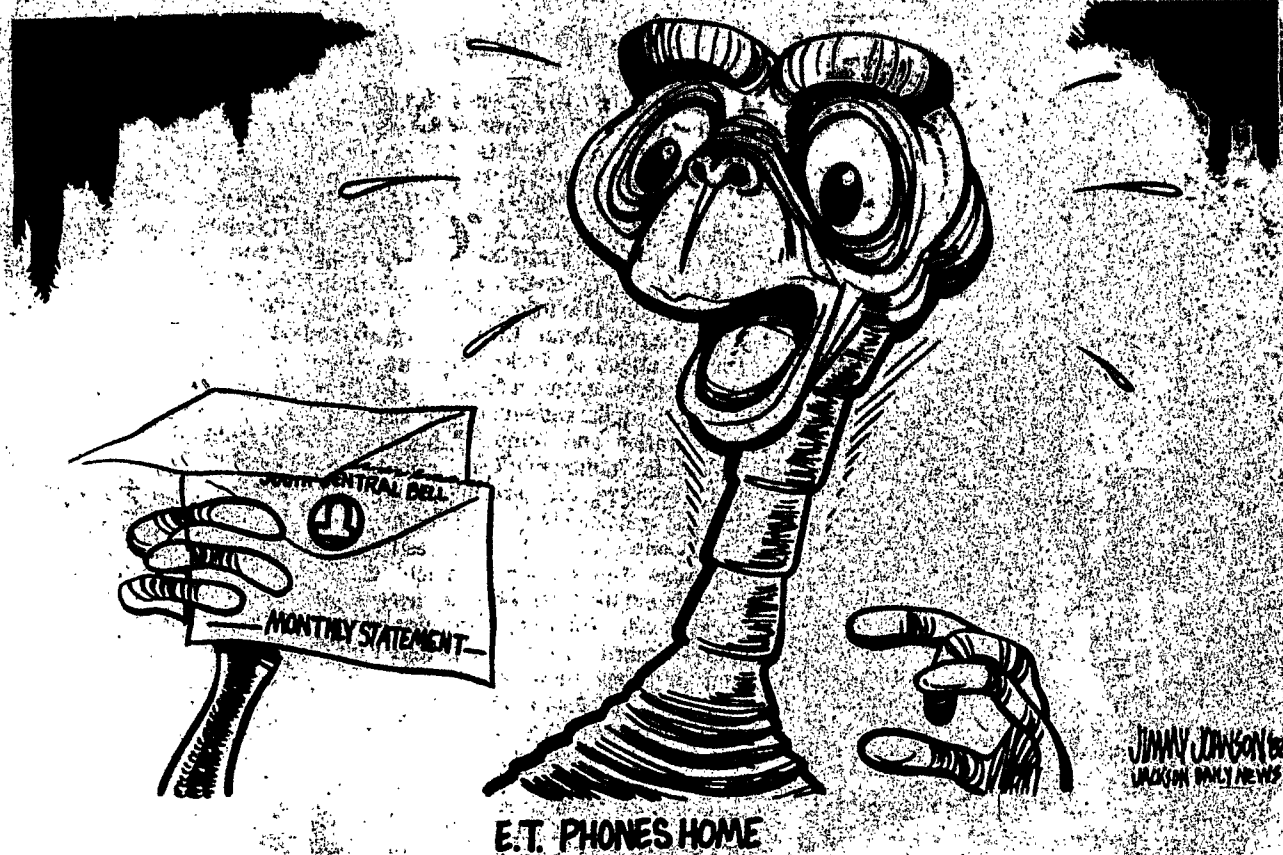

Cover bird baths, dog dishes and fish ponds before spraying. Pour left-over spray down a drain or into the soil. Don't leave it around in pans or pails.

In case of accident, follow the directions on the container. If in doubt, call your physician.

Wouldn't it be nice to have a clean city for our children to grow up in? Children learn by example, teach your child not to litter.

City doing its best with resources available

August 5, 1982
To The Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

I have read a lot of letters in the paper about Mayor Bennett and City Hall.

I have been working for the city for five years and in that time I think the mayor has done the best he can, and I think it is time someone stood up for the city.

Why don't some of you people that like to write letters try being mayor — maybe you won't find it so easy.

I see some people talk about playgrounds and joy riding.

We have four playgrounds and are cleaned very often, but how do you expect to see beautification when people use them as dumps.

And as for joy riding, have you ever stopped to think that these trucks might be on an errand. I have made many myself and do not find that joy riding.

He wants to know how many joy rides he is paying for. Does he know how much he is paying for gas to follow city trucks?

I think the city is doing the best it can with what it has.

Thank you,

Commercial sponsors vital to vo-tech system

Dear Sir,

The Pearl River Junior College, Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center was well represented at the 18th Annual Trade and Industrial Education Leadership and Skill Olympics Conference held in Louisville, Ky. from June 21 to 26.

Joey Mofan, who earlier this year won first place state honors in the high school level Electrical Trades Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) contest, competed as Mississippi's representative in the National Conference at Louisville.

Expenses incurred by Joey during the conference were paid by donations received from Captain J.L. Evans, City of Waveland, Coast Electric Power Association, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Mont Electric Supply, Necaise Electric Company, Rocket dyne Al Stand Technicians (prime sponsor), and Stevenson Electric Supply Company.

The Vo-Tech Center and its VICA Club, would like to bring public attention to these sponsors.

The continuous interest and support given to this school by individuals, industry, community groups and governmental agencies helps insure quality vocational education for its students.

Respectfully yours,

Councilman brands tax collection criticism 'political'

Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

An ill considered proposal to relinquish control of Bay St. Louis' tax collection system to the Hancock County Tax Department received a negative vote from the city council along with a threat of veto by the mayor.

This proposal was offered on the pretext that money would be saved. This proposal would not be cost productive but would definitely result in much higher cost to the city.

Mr. Warren Carver and Mr. Paul Vegas each wrote recent letters to the editor of this newspaper critical of the action of the council and the mayor.

Tax revenues are the lifeblood of this city. It is the solemn duty of this administration to assess, collect, protect, control and disburse its tax monies in the best interest of its citizens.

To delegate control of this vital function to an outside entity would constitute an abdication of public trust and a dereliction of duty.

The city tax department is a well organized, smooth running efficient operation, congenial and helpful to the citizens.

Thru the years it has handled millions upon millions of dollars with never a hint of wrongdoing.

Mrs. Estelle Johnston, chief tax collector, deserves a vote of confidence for her 17 years of dedicated service to this city.

It must be remembered that Mr. Carver was mayor of this city for eight years and Mr. Vegas was a member and chairman of the city planning commission almost as long.

Not once during all these years did either of these gentlemen suggest, advocate, recommend, propose or even hint at such a ridiculous change.

There are more than 290 cities in the state of Mississippi.

All collect their own taxes.

A representative telephone survey of 30 of these cities produced unanimous responses of "no thank you — we'll keep our tax department."

All of this smells of another organized attempt calculated to dilute the power of the mayor and to downgrade his image.

This may tell you something: within recent weeks Mr. Vegas' term on the planning commission expired.

The mayor did not reappoint him. Mr. Carver lost his last bid for mayor to Mr. Bennett.

Judicial system softhearted on white collar crime

Aug. 10, 1982
The Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

Billy Sills sat behind the prestige of his position which was bestowed upon him by the voters of the Hancock County School District and tells us he stole $7,500 from the school children.

An April Grand Jury charges him with inducement to award a contract. Penalty could have been a fine, a jail sentence, and forever disbarred from our school system.

Why were members of this jury called from their jobs, their vacations, or what ever they were doing, under order of the court to investigate and make suggestions and recommendations, only to have Roy Burris of the Mississippi Ethics Committee, a crime-busting organization; Bobby Parker of the State Highway Department who risks his life every day to combat crime; our own sheriff who I saw grow from a good kid to an honorable adult; as well as Judge Kosta Viohs all agree with District Attorney Albert Necaise to set Sills free as a bird after they had spent months seeking and finding convicting evidence? Why? Why?

In bypassing the findings and suggestions of this jury, Necaise chose to make his won "personal" decision, by reducing the charge whereby Sills will not only go free, but he will probably be back in our school system before dawn influencing our kids.

He does not have to periodically report to the parole board, a usual and necessary procedure.

No mention was even made of a $10-per-month payment to the Mississippi Department of Corrections, a court order which often accompanies a suspended sentence with probation. Necaise tells us there are other ways to punish a criminal besides behind bars. I must agree, but why didn't this criminal get any punishment at all?

Oh, yes, again Necaise has already told us the black mark and embarrassment Sills suffers is enough.

Nobody is responsible for that black mark but Sills himself, so why should a whole county suffer humiliation from his self-satisfaction?

Yes, he returned the $7,500 which wasn't his in the first place; yes, he paid 10 percent interest which I am sure was less than what he made on the deposits.

If I may express my personal opinion, the same as Albert Necaise does, even though in apparent defiance or contrary to our system of justice pertaining to law he is entrusted to honor, to serve, and to obey in the best interests of a decent society, I say we have had too much of Necaise.

Those in law enforcement who agree with his "soft" heartedness should follow him out, because they are only contributing to lawlessness instead of promoting solutions.

After all the force in our Hancock County system, Sills goes to Jackson to answer a tax evasion charge.

Lo and behold, the Hancock County prosecutors dropped the charges, and Assistant District Attorney Cynthia Brown, whose salary also comes from the dollars for the purpose of upholding justice and prosecuting crime, told us they didn't prosecute because Sills had confessed to stealing $7,500 from a bunch of school kids.

Two and two finally makes five.

Thanks,
Paul Lissner

Small-business

by Wilson S. Johnson

PAYROLL TAX INCREASES HURT SMALL-BUSINESS MOST

Small business has provided 80 percent of all new jobs in the last two decades. Small business accounts for about 40 percent of the Gross National Product. The economy is in trouble. We need more jobs and we must expand the national pie — the GNP.

Small business could help if the Congress would stop putting roadblocks in the way, roadblocks such as the increase in the federal employment tax (FUTA). Payroll taxes are the nemesis of the small-business owner. They come off the top of his gross revenues. He pays them whether he is making money or on the verge of bankruptcy.

And the FUTA tax is one of the most inequitable of the payroll taxes. There is growing evidence that efficient, stable employers, most of whom are small-business owners, have been subsidizing larger, less stable firms which have a higher turnover of employees.

Yet when FUTA tax increase came to the floor of the Senate, all but five Republicans — and many who consider themselves friends of small business — voted in favor of increasing the FUTA base. These friends of small business should know that a recent study by Touche-Ross revealed that over 50 percent of the taxes paid by small firms — in some cases as high as 90 percent — are payroll taxes.

An analysis by the National Federation of Independent Business indicates that since 1952, payroll taxes for all businesses have risen from 10 percent of total taxes to a whopping 30 percent. During that same period, personal income taxes declined slightly and corporate income taxes dropped from 30 percent to about 10 percent of the total tax burden.

Those figures do not tell the whole story, however. Because small business is labor intensive (and therefore provides most new jobs), the small-business owner's share of payroll taxes is much higher than that of the capital-intensive large corporation. The squeeze is on the little guy, and the new tax bill has tightened the grip even more.

So far this year, there have been more than 13,000 bankruptcies, most of them small businesses. Ten times that number of businesses have simply closed. Start-ups of new businesses will probably equal the number of failures, but in turn, three out of five of those new businesses will fail in the next three years. The heavy burden of payroll taxes will be a factor in those failures.

With the closing of so many small businesses go the jobs, a large share of the Gross National Product and the prospects for a stronger economy. One wonders if those "friends" of small business in the Congress — the ones who voted for the FUTA increase — realize that their votes may be the kiss of death to many small businesses in their states.

(Wilson S. Johnson is president of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing more than half a million small-business men and women.)

National Navaho Code Talkers Day

A Proclamation By the President of the United States of America

Since the Revolutionary War, when General George Washington praised the Indians under his command, the United States has been privileged to have members of the Indian Nation serve in its armed forces.

From the bravery demonstrated at Valley Forge and the establishment of the U.S. Indian Scouts on August 7, 1866, to the present day, Native Americans have heeded the call to duty. Though often excluded from the annals of United States history, these people, nonetheless, have defended the only land they have ever known, asking for nothing more than opportunity in return.

The Navaho Nation, when called upon to serve the United States, contributed a precious commodity never before used in this way. In the midst of the fighting in the Pacific during World War II, a gallant group of men from the Navaho Nation utilized their language in coded form to help speed the Allied victory.

Equipped with the only foolproof, unbreakable code in the history of warfare, the code talkers confused the enemy with an earful of words never before heard by code experts. The dedication and unwavering devotion to duty shown by the men of the Navaho Nation in serving as radio code talkers in the Marine Corps during World War II should serve as a fine example for all Americans.

It is fitting that at this time we also express appreciation for the other American Indians who have served our Nation in times of war. Members of the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Creek, Seminole, and other tribes used their tribal languages as effective battlefield codes against the Germans in World War I and the Japanese and Germans in World War II.

Beyond this unique role, American Indians serving in the United States military forces have established an outstanding record of bravery and heroism in battle. Many have given their lives in the performance of their duty. Their record should be recognized by all Americans.

By House Joint Resolution 444, the Congress has requested me to designate August 14, 1982, as National Navaho Code Talkers Day.

Palestinian homeland promises to be dangerous issue for many years to come

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article resulted from a grant made by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. However, the opinions expressed are those of the author and not of the Mississippi Press Association nor of the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities.

By JAMES J. COOKE
Professor of History
University of Mississippi

Students, faculty, staff and townspeople filled the ballroom of the Ole Miss Student Union at a recent dinner sponsored by the Organization of Arab Students.

After the dinner a slide presentation led to animated discussions on the Palestinian people. It was a topic that evoked passionate responses.

While there are many Arabs on that one campus, it is not obvious that so many are Palestinian. In textbook English, sometimes halting, they express sympathy with the Palestine Liberation Organization; a sympathy born of sheer frustration and alienation.

"What is Palestine?" a Palestinian student was asked.

"It is our homeland," was the quick, formal response.

The entire question of a Palestinian homeland is filled with grave dangers for world peace. A look at a map of the world will disclose that what Palestinians claim as a homeland is the present state of Israel, and for most Americans, this claim presents a severe problem.

Since 1948, a very special relationship has existed between the United States and Israel because America has been Israel's most consistent supporter. However, the demands for oil and American strategic interest required friendship with all Arabs and Arab states.

The millions of Palestinians who also claimed the land as their own were forgotten in the religious enthusiasm that accompanied Israel's return to the Promised Land.

This obscuring of Palestinians and the consistent failures of Arab governments to deal with the Jewish state resulted in the creation of various Palestinian groups after the disastrous Six Day War of 1967.

As one Palestinian said, "Yes, Israel has our homeland, but our plight is due to 30 years of Arab mistakes also."

Therein lies the dilemma of the Palestinians: they often see themselves as used by one side and forgotten by the other. This frustration is often turned to abhorrent terrorist acts of violence, rightly condemned by the free world.

Since the Seventh Century, the land in question had been under either Islamic control or under the control of the European Imperial powers. For almost a century prior to World War II, Zionists in Europe, sensitive to growing anti-Jewish feeling, had pushed for the establishment of a "Jewish National Homeland" in Palestine, the land of the Old and New Testament.

The horrors of the Nazi concentration camps brought home to the world the consequences of the unchecked anti-Semitism in Europe. Finally, in May 1948 the state of Israel was founded, and immediate ly recognized by the United States government.

Guilt and sympathy helped turn the tide for those wishing to establish the Jewish homeland. In 1947 the United Nations adopted a partition plan, establishing a Jewish and an Arab state in British controlled Palestine. But this plan was not to work.

A year later Israel was established, bringing on a war between the Arabs and the Israelis. Millions of Palestinians found themselves uprooted and in camps such as the ones established in the Gaza strip and in southern Lebanon.

In 1956 and in 1967 Arabs and Israelis fought again with sound defeats for the Arabs each time. However, in 1967 with the end of the Six Day War, Israel was in possession of the West Bank of the Jordan River, land seized from the Kingdom of Jordan, but filled with irate and frustrated Palestinian Arabs.

Coming out of the despair of 1967 was the attempt to organize all Palestinians into one large political action group, the most important of which remained the Palestine Liberation Organization (the PLO).

Actually, the PLO was created in 1964 as a part of the continual Arab struggle against Israel's occupation of territories taken in previous wars. In its initial concept the PLO was to be political in nature and was to be a vehicle for Palestinian propaganda. But, younger, better educated Palestinians rallied around more youthful leaders like Yasir Arafat who formed the al-Fatah commando groups which began operations against Israel in January 1965.

When the disastrous 1967 war was over, Arafat and the younger Palestinians pushed for more armed action against the Jewish state, because they believed the traditional Arab countries to be too weak to really accomplish the military objective of retaking Palestine.

Arafat was faced with an internal problem in that many younger Palestinians, educated in Europe, wanted to wage an all-out, no-holds-barred campaign of terrorism in Israel itself.

From what can be gathered—and no one outside can really know all details—Arafat seemed to be unsure of a complete terrorist campaign on one hand, but on the other hand, he faced the danger of losing control of the PLO and al-Fatah.

To see the PLO split was especially distressing not only to Arafat but to other Arab leaders.

A real crisis occurred with the creation of the Marxist oriented Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine under the articulate Dr. George Habash.

Operating from bases in Jordan and Lebanon, Habash's PFLP conducted raids until September 1970, when four hijacked western airplanes, filled with passengers were landed on a deserted airstrip near Amman, Jordan.

The passengers were treated harshly, especially if they were Jewish, and finally the planes were blown up.

Immediately, pressure was brought to bear on Jordan's King Hussein who reacted by sending his tough and loyal Bedouin filled army against the Palestinians.

This harsh fight brought into being the Black September Movement, which appeared alienated from Arafat, who had made his peace with King Hussein, and from the mainstream of the PLO.

Arafat has had other problems such as the popularity of Libyan leader Muammar al-Qaddafi, who has supported direct terrorist actions and has won the admiration of many young Palestinians who feel the rising tide of the all-too-evident Islamic revival in the Near East.

The Iranian revolution under Ayatollah Khomeini has also served as a rallying point for some who believe that possibly Arafat has lost his zeal for direct confrontation.

In 1972 the level of violence reached an all time high when there was a massacre of civilians in the Lod Airport in Israel and Israeli athletes were kidnapped and murdered at the Munich Olympics.

In reaction the Tel Aviv government of Prime Minister Golda Meir sent Israeli troops into southern Lebanon to stamp out terrorist camps there.

In 1973 Yom Kippur War did much to frustrate Palestinians and the PLO. It is believed now that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat launched Egypt's part of the war because of the full moon in October and because of information fed to him by Soviet spy satellites, not simply because it was Israel's Yom Kippur—the Day of Atonement.

But, there was another reason. With sophisticated Soviet weapons, like the famed suitcase Sagger Missile, Egypt saw a good chance to win some victories and pave the way for true peace talks between equals.

Regardless of the final outcome of the war, Sadat initially accomplished his objective and started on the road to Camp David and the peace processes in force today.

For the PLO, however, the Yom Kippur War meant that one of the Palestinian's long time allies was talking peace with Israel. No longer did Carlo echo to Abdal Gamal Nasser's anti-Israel rhetoric.

It was the new talk of peace by Anwar Sadat. This even more frustrated Palestinians and pushed them toward Qaddafi and Khomeini for economic and military support.

Arafat paid a visit to Iran and publicly praised the fundamentalist Shi'ite Muslim leader for his anti-Israeli and anti-American position.

The Palestinians viewed the Sadat-Begin talks as proof that they were to be forgotten again, and when it was rumored that Jordan's King Hussein was considering entering into similar talks with Israel, there was an upswing in violence.

Even in the face of Egyptian-Israeli talks and settlements, Prime Minister Begin continues to deal with occupied territories as if they were permanently a part of the Israeli state.

Removal of popular Arab mayors who supported the political goals of the PLO has fueled the fires even more.

As they did in 1948, Palestinians see themselves as used by Arabs and dispossessed by Israelis and ignored by the rest of the world.

It is this feeling that has deeply wounded Palestinians. Their despair has brought them into terrorist training camps such as ones set up by Colonel Muammar al-Qaddafi in Libya. Moreover, Arafat has been vocal in his support of the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran, and the Soviets have found recruits among the Palestinian young, a movement distressing to the older, devout Muslims in the Palestinian community.

It is ironic that the state of Israel, founded because of so much agony, has created a despair of its own. As much as Israelis want peace, so do the Palestinians want a homeland again.

Tragically, a true Palestinian state is not likely to be established, even one on the Jordanian Left Bank. Simply, neither Israel nor Jordan have expressed any interest in seeing a Palestinian West Bank State established. The situation there continues to be especially volatile for all sides.

The destruction of PLO bases in Lebanon and Syria's stern refusal to accept the Palestinians have only added to the feelings of despair and frustration.

Those who call for a Palestinian state on the Left Bank believe that Israel would always be powerful enough to maintain her own security and that the establishment of the Palestinian state would defuse much of the hatred, bitterness, and despair that drives many into the terrorist camps which endanger peace in the Middle East.

The fighting in Lebanon shows that the Israelis can move quickly and decisively against the armed PLO at almost any time.

The issues are complex and the consequences world-shattering in scope. A homeland for the Palestinians promises to be a point of danger and confrontation for many years to come.

White Cypress resident vanishes before hearing, now he's wanted

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A White Cypress resident implicated in a Michigan burglary is now wanted by the Mississippi governor's office after failing to appear at a Tuesday extradition hearing and has apparently vanished from this area.

Joseph W. Perry, 48, of Route 1, Box 325-C, Pass Christian was in Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis about four weeks after his June 7 arrest at Stennis International Airport by a host of heavily-armed local, state and federal law enforcement agents.

Law enforcement officials arrested Perry based on a National Crime Information Network bulletin which reported he was wanted in connection with a 1977 burglary of a Michigan Secretary of State branch office in Birmingham.

Perry was released July 2 after paying $1,500 bond.

Hancock Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson and Henry Cook III, Perry's attorney, both confirmed Wednesday that the White Cypress man did not appear at a 10 a.m. extradition hearing at the governor's office in Jackson.

Cook said the governor's office has now issued a warrant for Perry's arrest and if found will be jailed without bond until he is extradited to Michigan.

"He (Perry) was supposed to meet me here at my office Tuesday early morning before the hearing and he didn't show up," the attorney stated.

"He's either skipped out or got kidnapped," Cook said.

The attorney said he did not understand why Perry would have vanished because extradition might have been prevented.

The White Cypress man is not home, all of his personal belongings are gone and none of his friends know where he is, Cook reported.

Perry was last seen in this area late

Sunday night, the attorney added. Peterson said he received a call Tuesday from Sue Evans at the governor's office who reported Perry did not show for the hearing.

"I feel like he's (Perry) back to being a fugitive from justice. I knew he wouldn't be around for the hearing," the sheriff stated.

Peterson expected a warrant for Perry's arrest to arrive at his office today.

NABBED FOR BURGLARIES

A joint investigation by the sheriff's department and the Waveland Police Department has led to the arrest of several youths and an adult in various Waveland burglaries.

Investigator Delbert Seay of the sheriff's department said Donald Carver, 19, of BaySide Park is in jail under $5,000 bond charged in the March 28 burglary of a meat slicer and meat valued at $1,607 from Waveland Elementary School and thefts at two homes in the Idlewood Subdivision in that city.

Carver is charged along with two boys placed in custody of the County Youth Court, he reported.

Seay said one of the juveniles is charged in three break-ins at the school.

Investigator Robert (Poochie) Tartavouille of the Waveland department said the $1,200 slicer was recovered in the arrests on Aug. 5.

Seay reported David Chazez, 19, of Route 1, Box 112, Bay St. Louis was also arrested and charged with burglarizing a Idlewood home.

Chazez was released Friday on $2,500 bond, Tartavouille added.

Also in jail and charged in the Idlewood burglaries are Mike Stringer, 21, of Washington Road in Bay St. Louis and Toni Gavney, 18, of 403 Sandy St. in Waveland, Tartavouille said.

Both are in jail under $1,000 bond each, he noted.

Seay said the arrests were made in various areas of the county.

Seay also reported Dianna Johnson, 27, of 2311 Kilm-Waveland Road, Bay St. Louis was released Aug. 5 on $5,000 bond after being charged with burglary in a July 3 theft of several items from Susan Baker's Shoreline Park residence.

The investigator revealed some $1,500 in merchandise was recovered in the arrest.

A stereo, color television, cassette tape recorder and various electronic equipment valued at $5,000 were stolen from Baker, Seay listed.

Investigating officers were Seay, Tartavouille and Investigator Sandra Henley of the Waveland Department.

DRUG ARRESTS

Two Hancock County residents are out on bond after their arrests for illegal drug possession.

Investigator Alvin Ladner of the sheriff's department recently reported Kenneth R. Carver, 25 of Blue Meadow Road near Bay St. Louis was released on $2,000 bond Aug. 5 after being arrested in the afternoon for possession of about two ounces of marijuana.

The investigator said Carver was nabbed at the corner of Beach Boulevard and Washington Street in Bay St. Louis.

Walter W. Seawright of Shoreline Park was released on $5,000 bond that night after being charged with possession of marijuana and various drugs.

Ladner said a search warrant was issued for Seawright's home by Justice Court John Chevis.

Almost one pound of the weed, hashish, quaaludes, librium and various other pills were found in the residence, the investigator reported.

Participating in the search and arrest were Peterson, Ladner, and Deputies David Murtagh, David Garcia and Eddie Jennings.

Mini-kindergarten program eyed by Bay school leaders

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees Monday night directed J.D. McCullough, superintendent of education, to investigate the feasibility of establishing a mini-kindergarten program in the district.

Walter Turcotte of Waveland, board president, recommended the program which would be offered in conjunction with summer school classes at Bay Senior High School.

The board president said his recommendation was based on discussion with the district's first grade teachers who feel students not receiving kindergarten instruction are generally unproductive for the first six weeks to 2.5 months of classes.

He said the mini-kindergarten would be an annual six-week course.

Turcotte noted the State Legislature has repeatedly failed to fund a statewide public school pre-school program and feels the state will not support kindergartens for several years to come.

Trustee Betty Diboll stated, "I think it's a wonderful idea which would help the children and I'll make a motion that we authorize the superintendent to check into this."

The board president asked that McCullough complete the feasibility study and offer his recommendation no later than December.

In other business at the 7:30 p.m. regular meeting at the superintendent's office at the senior high, the board:

—Approved its July claims docket totalling $65,851. McCullough said the unusually high docket figure resulted from the payment of annual insurance premiums totalling $39,493;

—Approved hiring Roxanne Lagard as a Bay Junior High School science teacher;

—Accepted a $1,476 annual mechanical contract with Pitco, Inc. of Bay St. Louis for maintaining equipment at Waveland Elementary School; —Authorized the sale of bus No. Four which is being replaced with a new vehicle;

—Authorized the sale of obsolete school equipment which primarily consists of office machines and audio-visual equipment;

—Discussed the board's annual inspection of school facilities which will be today beginning at 2 p.m.;

—Heard a report from McCullough that the annual staff and faculty meeting will be Monday in the senior high library at 2 p.m.;

—Met in executive session for one hour and 20 minutes with Athletic Director Wilmer Seymour and teacher Billy Rhodes to discuss personnel which Seymour said involved personalities.

Want to beat the heat and save your feet? Let the Bell System Yellow Pages be your guide for finding almost anything you're hunting. Your Bell System Yellow Pages lists the suppliers of the products and services you need. So you can make comparisons or track down the best price before you do any traveling.

In the Yellow Pages you can find a business's address, business hours, credit cards honored, and more.

No matter what you need, let your first step be in the Bell System Yellow Pages. Save time, energy and money. Let your fingers do the walking - through the Bell System Yellow Pages.

To find names and numbers easily in the white pages of your telephone directory, follow these timesaving tips:

- Use the guide words in the upper corner of each page to quickly find the correct page on which a name appears. "Borden" might be listed on a page headed "Booth-Borgerson."
- Cross references for some names are listed when spellings vary. "Smith" could be "Smyth" or "Smythe."
- A name with a prefix is one word. "O'Donnell" follows "Odum."
- "MacArthur" follows "Mabry."
- For abbreviated words, spell out the abbreviation. For example, "Mr." would be found under "Mount" and "St. John" under "Saint."
- Initials precede full names. "Williams, L." would come before "Williams, Laura."
- When numbers are used as names, they are alphabetized as if they were spelled out. To find "29 Drive-In," look under "Twenty-Nine."
- If a company has a two-word name, it's listed in alphabetical order by the first word.

Demos call for repeal of bond rate increases

The State Executive Committee of the Mississippi Democratic Party has added its voice to the growing chorus calling for repeal of the statute which allows utilities to implement rate increases under bond.

At its regular meeting on Saturday, the committee unanimously adopted a resolution calling on the Mississippi legislature to repeal the law which would permit Mississippi Power and Light Company to implement the rate increases recently proposed.

The latest filing for rate increase—some $5.2 million—under bond was made this week by Entex which provides natural gas service in Harrison County.

Danny Cupit, State Democratic Party chairman, said that "Mississippi Power and Light Company's recent decision to implement another rate hike is in total disregard of the citizens of this state. Consumers have no recourse but to look to our elected officials to prevent this arrogant and abusive use of power.

"The statute permitting a utility company to implement a rate increase under bond without first getting the approval of the Public Service Commission was no doubt based upon the assumption that the utility would use some reasonable self-restraint," Cupit added.

"It is obvious that MP&L is either unwilling or unable to impose that self-restraint. If the utility is not willing to act in a responsible manner, then our elected officials should take action to force it to do so."

In other action Saturday, the Executive Committee endorsed the reelection of Sen. John C. Stennis.

"The United States Senate is not the place to begin to learn how government operates," Cupit stated. "Sen. Stennis has the knowledge, capability, and commitment to continue representing Mississippi forcefully and effectively."

The committee also endorsed incumbent Congressman Wayne Dowdy, running unopposed in the Democratic primary for reelection from the Fourth Congressional District, and Arion "Blackie" Coaste, running without opposition for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District.

The committee pledged to support "actively and vigorously" the nominees elected in the Democratic primaries in the First, Second, and Third Congressional Districts.

"We want to make it clear to everyone that particularly in the race in the Second Congressional District we feel that all four candidates seeking the Democratic Party nomination are exceptionally well-qualified and that we enthusiastically pledge our support to whoever is nominated and will do everything we can to see to it that he is elected to Congress in the general election," Cupit emphasized.

Money Talk By Norine Barnes

The first step in saving money in the grocery store is to learn the ABC's of meat buying. Meat is a major purchase and represents a large share of the food budget. Buy meat by cost per serving.

For example, large amounts of bone and fat in meat, such as in spare ribs and neck bones, give you only about one or two servings per pound.

In meats with medium amounts of bone and fat, such as chops or steaks, you can plan on getting two or three servings per pound; and with meats which have little or no fat and bone, as boneless lean stew beef or ground beef, you can get four servings per pound.

To figure cost per serving, divide the number of servings into the cost per pound. For example, spare ribs at $1.99 per pound cost $1.99 per serving while ground beef at $1.89 per pound costs about 48 cents per serving.

To save additional money, learn to be your own butcher. Whole fryers are cheaper than cut up fryers. Buy large beef roasts and cut into steaks, stewing beef or smaller roasts.

Finally, learn to substitute less expensive cuts of meat or other protein sources, such as eggs, cheese, peanut butter, and dried beans. Make your money count more when using that technique, too.

For example, compare sizes of eggs and prices and remember that size and color have nothing to do with quality. As a general rule of thumb, if the price difference between sizes is more than 7 cents a dozen, you'll get more for your money by buying the smaller size.

Scientists requesting public report marked dolphins

By BRENT MACEY

Boaters and anglers heading into the Mississippi Sound in the upcoming months should not be surprised to spy an occasional dolphin marked on its back and dorsal fin with a number between 601 and 650.

The marking was undertaken by Marine Animal Productions of the Marine Life Oceanarium in Gulfport during the first phase of a study designed to find out more about how bottlenose dolphins live in the wilds.

The public will now have the opportunity to play a major role in making the study successful.

Monday, several members of the scientific team met in the Holiday Inn in Gulfport at a press conference designed to solicit help from the general public during the second phase of the study.

Members at the conference included Don Jacobs, owner and director of Marine Animal Productions, Dr. Moby A. Solangi, project director, Dr. Gerald Dukes, Marine Life staff veterinarian and Robert Ford Jr., a biologist with the National Marine Fisheries Service.

The scientists requested anyone who spots a marked dolphin to take note of the number in its back, the time and location of the sighting, and the number of dolphins in a herd.

Information can be forwarded to the team via a "dolphin hotline" (601-896-3981).

Collect calls will be accepted.

Ford cautioned the public not to harass the animals after spotting them. He said the most reliable information would be acquired if the animals were not bothered.

The scientists explained the marking began some 45 days ago after the dolphins from Pascagoula to Cat Island were captured in large nets and branded.

Ford explained the branding was accomplished by use of a brass marking utensil which was dipped in the extreme cold of liquid nitrogen. The resulting imprint left a "freeze mark" on the hide of the dolphin.

Ford said the marking was not a terribly painful experience for the mammals.

He noted doctors often used liquid nitrogen on patients to remove skin cancer, warts or other growths.

He said the mark will last between one to two years.

Marking the dolphins will enable scientists to record migration patterns and to discover whether the mammals leave the Mississippi Sound and associate with other dolphins outside the barrier reef.

Although dolphins have been studied in captivity for a number of years, Ford noted that little is known of their behavior in the wilds.

While migration will be recorded with the help of the public, information concerning characteristics of the herd's social structure can also be learned.

In addition to the marking, the dolphins also underwent a complete physical examination including blood tests, weighing and measuring.

Jacobs and Ford noted the dolphins were in "very good health."

Ford noted the animals are at the top of the food chain, much can be learned about the general well being of the marine environment in the Mississippi Sound.

Ford noted the Mississippi Sound contains one of the largest populations of dolphins and estimated some 500 of the mammals occupy the Sound during summer months.

Solangi estimated some 5,000 bottlenose dolphins live in an area from here to Mobile Bay.

Keesler open house to mark Air Force's 35th anniversary

The public is invited to Keesler Air Force Base Sept. 18 for an open house celebration marking the 35th Anniversary of the U.S. Air Force.

The gates to the base will open to the public at 11:30 a.m. with the first activities of the day scheduled to begin at noon. Activities will draw to a close at 5 p.m.

Throughout the day, numerous Air Force aircraft, ranging from the most current fighters to transports, will be on display on the flightline. Visitors will have the opportunity to see these aircraft, and talk with the pilots about the capabilities of some of the nation's most modern defense equipment.

Keesler's widely known 502nd Air Force Band will perform several times during the day, as will the volunteer Blue Knights Drum and Bugle Corps and other special units. Also, several base organizations will give demonstrations including the Security Police Squadron's working dog section.

A unique demonstration will be given by members of the Keesler model aircraft club, including a flight by a hand-built model of a piper cub having a 14-foot wingspan and powered by a modified chain-saw engine.

Many booths will provide food and refreshments for visitors, and other displays will explain to visitors the duties and missions of various Keesler units.

School board regulates venders after teacher insurance squabble

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

An insurance salesman's attempt to convince Hancock County School District teachers to change companies for group hospitalization coverage resulted in the School Board Saturday requiring all venders of district-funded services to receive approval from the board prior to any employee solicitation.

The board last year approved Lamar Life Insurance Co. of Jackson to provide the coverage and designated Fred Holmes of Gulfport as the agent of record for that company.

However, Holmes Saturday revealed he is no longer a Lamar representative but is of Fred Holmes and Associates which is handling Washington National Insurance.

Louie Ladner, a board member, requested Holmes explain the teacher's present coverage.

After explaining the policies, Holmes reported Lamar Life will increase premiums 40-73 percent if the insurance agreement is renewed by the board and he is no longer representing the company because of the alleged hike.

He also said Lamar policy holders are experiencing difficulties receiving claim payments.

Ladner reported the teachers' present policy will remain in effect until Oct. 1.

He said teachers were concerned after receiving a letter from Holmes reporting the projected hike.

The board member then brought Bill Ogden of Jackson, vice president of marketing, and Will Gieger of Biloxi, a sales representative, both of Lamar, in to the meeting room.

Ogden said premiums would increase 18-20 percent and the district would receive a quotation of guaranteed rates for another year on Sept. 1.

Ladner said he was highly upset with the impressions teachers have received from Holmes regarding Lamar insurance coverage.

The board member said a standing teacher's committee as well as the board would review proposals from all interested insurance companies for coverage for the upcoming year.

A teacher attending the meeting said she was under the impression Lamar rates would double and faculty members should sign new policies immediately.

Ladner said many teachers were preparing to secure policies from other companies because they thought the rates would double.

In reference to Holmes' presentation, Ogden said, "I wish I had a tape recorder. I would have taken what he said to the State Insurance Commissioner."

The company vice president and Ladner both reported Billy Silla, former superintendent of education, for some reason would not request the board change the agent of record for Lamar after Holmes left the company.

The board approved Gieger as Lamar's new agent of record as recommended by Ladner.

Holmes and Tommy Brooks of Nationwide Insurance Co. in Waveland both objected to Lamar not providing a guaranteed rate sooner because they said competing companies could not gather the necessary information to provide a rate schedule within 30 days.

Ogden disagreed and said the information could be gathered and analyzed within three weeks.

Regarding complete insurance coverage for district property, the board accepted a low annual quotation of $40,139 from Hancock Insurance Co. of Bay St. Louis.

Brooks submitted the only other quotation of $45,529 for the coverage.

Earlier in the meeting, the board rejected bids for the insurance coverage as recommended by Joseph Gex, board attorney, and asked for quotations including broadened liability coverage.

He said, based on state bidding laws, the board could not limit accepting bids only from Hancock County companies.

Lou Carver of the district's bookkeeping department reported some of the district's insurance policies would soon expire if not renewed that day, so the board then sought the quotations.

Ladner said last year premiums for Hancock Insurance coverage totalled some $51,000.

Dick Kosbab of Hancock explained the lower rate this year resulted from changing the carrying company for most of the district's policies.

Ladner contended the lower rate resulted from the district advertising for bids. He was the only board member voting against accepting the company's quotation.

Havens issues statement on bond rate increases

Lynn Havens, chairman of the Mississippi Public Service Commission, Southern District, issued the following statement Tuesday:

"I am asking Mississippi Power and Light Company officials to withdraw their systems agreement filing with Middle South Energy, Inc. pertaining to Grand Gulf that increases MP&L's retained capacity of Unit 1 from 19 percent to 31.6 percent and furthermore, the systems agreement is requesting retained capacity of Unit 2 for MP&L's of 43.9 percent.

"I feel that it is imperative that MP&L withdraw their systems agreement with Middle South Energy, Inc. and reduce back to their original 19 percent that they testified before this Commission in 1974 that they would retain of Unit 1.

"Now, without consulting this commission, MP&L has filed for an increase to 31.6 percent of Unit 1 and 43.9 percent of Unit 2 before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

"MP&L has admitted to me that energy is not needed from Grand Gulf at this time. It is very obvious to me beyond any shadow of doubt that our rate payers of MP&L cannot stand an increase of Unit 1 from 19 percent to 31.6 percent and in no way can attempt to pay for 43.9 percent of Unit 2.

"Middle South Utilities in 1981 allowed Arkansas Power and Light Company to withdraw from participation in Grand Gulf and I am calling upon the officials of MP&L to use the same procedure to withdraw completely from Unit 2 and to reduce their request on participation in Unit 1 back to their original testimony that they gave under Oath in 1974.

"The simple fact is, I am telling MP&L to cut back and get out of Grand Gulf. Since Friday, July 30, after my correspondence with the governor, I have been very encouraged with the response from other public officials of this state coming forward in support of repealing the section of the law allowing utilities to put rate increases into effect under bond.

"I deeply appreciate their response and their concern that has been expressed about the impact of rate increases on our consumers across this state."

Golden Eagles to crank up fall practice sessions Friday

The University of Southern Mississippi's Golden Eagles will crank up their fall practice sessions Friday and will have only 19 practice days in which to prepare for a Sept. 4 home opener against Northeast Louisiana.

New head coach Jim Carmody will be launching his career as a head man but he's not nearly new to the Golden Eagle scene.

He had been away from USM only one season when he was named to take over the reins in January. He spent the 1981 season with Buffalo of the National Football League after having been USM's assistant head coach for the 1978-79-80 seasons.

The Golden Eagle freshmen came in last Sunday and got a three-day head start on the veterans. All told, there should be about 125 aspirants taking part in Friday's two-day drills.

Carmody and his staff will build around 43 lettermen, among whom are 16 starters back from last year's Tangerine Bowl team. There are nine defensive starters and seven offensive starters, and if the No. 1 punter and No. 1 place-kicker are counted, the number of returning regulars goes up to 18.

All-America and Heisman Trophy candidate Reggie Collier, a 6-4, 205-pound quarterback Golden Eagle fans believe to be the most exciting player in the collegiate ranks, heads the list of veterans. While leading the '81 Eagles to a 9-1-1 regular season finish last year, the multi-talented Mississippi Gulf Coast product became the first major college quarterback ever to both run and pass for over 1,000 yards in a single season.

Workouts on Friday and Saturday, and Monday of next week, will find the Eagles practicing without pads. They'll put on their heavy gear for the first time on next Tuesday.

Two-day drills will continue through the first two weeks.

Bulldog football stats showing several streaks

Streaks are becoming an interesting part of the Mississippi State football scene.

As the Bulldogs embark on unified practice for the 83rd season of intercollegiate grid action here Friday, State will be hoping to keep several streaks intact in the Sept. 4 opener at Tulane.

For one thing, MSU has the distinction of scoring points in 78 of its last 79 games.

The last time that an MSU edition was shut out came in 1978 when Auburn applied a blank job 6-0 at Scott Field. State and the Tigers will meet here again on Oct. 23 in MSU's Homecoming battle this fall.

Since that encounter

Mississippi State has scored in 37 straight games and has tallied in all 35 contests coached by Emory Bellard.

Before that the Bulldogs recorded a school-record 41 straight games with points, and the current batch of games is the second-longest scoring streak in MSU annals. The 41-game skein lasted from mid-1974 to late-1978.

Putting the two sets of accomplishments together, MSU has lighted the scoreboard in 89 of the last 91 games—a mark of distinction held by probably just a couple of dozen squads nationwide.

Ironically, Coach Emory Bellard has never coached a tie game in 110 contests as a head coach at Texas A&M and MSU. He owns a lifetime record of 68-42 in the college ranks and is 16th nationally among active coaches.

As a team the Bulldogs technically have not been involved in a tie game since a 10-10 deadlock with Southern Mississippi in 1973, going back 95 games.

Auburn and MSU knotted 21-21 in 1975, but the game was later awarded to the Tigers by NCAA action. That gives the Bulldogs one of the nation's longest non-tie periods in college football history.

Another set of the Bulldogs, this one from the Citadel, reportedly holds the unofficial national record for "tieless" games with 226—a string which ended last fall when the Citadel tied Tennessee—Chattanooga 28-28.

And MSU's career individual streak for consecutive passes without an interception is 64, set by Bruce Threadgill in 1976-77.

Current quarterback John Bond, who has been a two-year starter at State, threatened that record last year and in the latter part of '80 but came up just short when he had one streak of just one interception in 60 passing attempts.

The first public racetrack was built in 1174.

What's In It For You???

Nutrition For Active People

These suggestions are excerpted from a pamphlet prepared by the Center for Transamerica Life, one of North America's leading life insurers and a company which has a special interest in prolonging your life.

What should you eat while developing a new fitness regime?

There are no significant differences between the nutritional needs of athletes and non-athletes. A balanced diet based on a wide selection of foods is essential to active individuals, but no more than their less-active counterparts.

There is one difference. Once you're on a regular exercise program, you'll burn up more calories. So, if your goal is to maintain your weight, you will need to eat more. If your goal is to lose weight, you will either want to maintain your current calorie intake or carefully cut it back. It's important to watch what you eat, not just the number of calories consumed.

Since carbohydrates are the most efficient source of energy, they should be increased in relation to your greater energy demand. This is especially true if main.

Since an athlete expending more energy tends to be higher, maintaining your weight is your goal.

Fruits, whole grain breads and cereals, all serve as a nutritious source of these extra calories.

In general, anyone concerned about health and fitness can benefit from these simple guidelines:

• Choose a wide variety of foods.

• Maintain an ideal body weight.

• Decrease overall fat and cholesterol intake.

• Increase complex carbohydrates and fiber.

• Avoid too much sugar.

• Avoid too much sodium.

A well-balanced diet will provide all the vitamins your active body needs. For a free copy of the pamphlet, "Sports Nutrition: Fact or fiction?" write to: Transamerica Life, 10000 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90015.

"The youth gets together materials for a bridge to the moon, and at length the middle-aged man decides to make a woodshed with them."
Henry David Thoreau

Brief

CANADIAN BULLDOG

Mississippi State's starting quarterback from 1975-77 after a year of apprenticeship under Rocky Felker in 1974 is having some good moments with the 1982 Calgary Stampers of the Canadian Football League.

Bruce Threadgill, a 6-1, 198-pound southpaw who grew up in Columbia, Miss., and played high school football in New Iberia, La., before signing with MSU, hit a 12-of-29 aerials for 234 yards and one score in his first four games.

After missing the games of the July 31 weekend, he returned to form and completed 2-of-4 aerials in limited action for Calgary against Ottawa on international television last Friday night in a relief role.

BEVERLY WARNER AWARD—Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ladner of Waveland, caretakers of Kingsley House's Camp Onward on South Beach in Bay St. Louis, receive the 1982 Beverly Warner Award from John Wall Jr., left, of New Orleans, La., executive director of Kingsley House. The award, the most prestigious presented annually by Kingsley House, is named for Dr. Beverly Warner, 18th rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in New Orleans from 1893 to 1910 and founder of Kingsley House. The Ladners have been staff members for some 30 years at Kingsley which has operated Camp Onward since 1970.

Newly-discovered comet to be visible this month

A newly-discovered comet may be visible with the naked eye this month. First observed by New Zealand astronomer Rodney Austin in late June, Comet Austin should be bright enough to see without optical aid in late August's evening skies. It is already the brightest comet of 1982, according to the Institute for Astronomical Research in Baton Rouge, La.

Faint and beyond the orbit of Mars when found, Comet Austin has since moved closer to both the earth and the sun and has brightened considerably.

Amateur and professional astronomers are now watching the comet. An important period of observation will be around August 24, when Comet Austin reaches perihelion (the closest point on the comet's orbit to the sun).

Cometary activity and tail development are expected to be greatest at that time. Comet Austin will then fade and head out of the solar system, never to return. The comet will probably be tracked by astronomers until mid-1983.

Comet Austin will be in the morning sky for the first two weeks of August. After mid-month, the comet can be viewed in the early evening without interference from moonlight.

On August 8, it passes close in the sky to the bright star Procyon.

Astronomers discover or rediscover about 15 comets a year. Most of these comets are too faint to be seen without large observatory telescopes. Comets are believed to be "primitive" material left over from the solar system's formation.

Space scientists hope to learn about the evolution of the solar system from the study of comets.

Famous Comet Halley is expected to be recovered by the world's largest telescopes within the next year or two. It should be a naked-eye comet in early 1986.

WHO'S WHO—Miss Lisa D. Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Ladner of Bay St. Louis, has been chosen for Who's Who Among American High School Students, her second consecutive year for this award. Miss Lewis, a 1982 graduate of Bay Senior High School, will attend Pearl River Junior College this fall.

Commuters expected to increase at USM

Student populations on college campuses change much like those of any community of 10,000 or more.

Officials at the University of Southern Mississippi expect more than half of their students will be commuting to the campus when school opens Aug. 28.

Several factors appear to contribute to this situation. One is the geographic location of USM near several large population centers; the current economy; and the increase in adult students above the traditional college age attending USM.

"USM is just easy to reach by a large segment of the population of south Mississippi, and the excellent highways enhance this situation," said Dr. Gene Saucier, dean of special academic services at USM.

Saucier said that USM has realized the unique needs of the commuter students and is making plans to meet their needs with a computer lounge on the second floor of the University Union, a planned commuter parking lot, as well as other helpful considerations.

Course scheduling has been one consideration of many commuters concerned about the need to come to the campus every day of the week. The scheduling of classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday or on Tuesday and Thursday could work well for the commuter requiring them to come to the campus two or three days a week. Night class offerings continue to be structured so those who can only come at night can get the classes they need.

According to USM financial officials a commuter student can attend the University for less than $120 per month tuition, take up to 19 hours and receive basic textbooks free.

Of all students who commute to the campus in Hattiesburg, two-thirds are taking a full-load of 12 or more hours. Forrest County commuters make up 29 percent of the commuter population, another 17 percent come from counties bordering Forrest and the remainder come from other counties.

USM officials said that the usual indicators of fall enrollment are not accurate this year due to the uncertainty of financial aid, the economy and other factors.

"We feel that we were hurt somewhat by national publicity surrounding the reduction of financial aid, because we did not lose the amount of money originally indicated," Saucier said.

According to Saucier, University officials are looking for ways to be of more service to commuting students, who now make up over half of the enrollment.

"We want to make it easy for the commuter to get and attend the classes they need, whether they take a full load or come to the campus for one class," Saucier said.

Registration by appointment for the fall semester begins Aug. 29. Any student who has not applied for admission should do so immediately. Students who need special information or assistance, such as adult students, commuters, handicapped, etc. should contact USM immediately. Adult students should call 266-4848, others call 266-5000.

Wildlife Magazine debunks bat myths

If you're one of those many people who believe that bats—the flying mammals associated with witches and Halloween—are rabid, filthy, aggressive animals that can infect humans with tuberculosis and other diseases, you're mistaken.

Those are among the myths that make the bat one of the world's most misunderstood animals, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

The fact is, bats deserve to be known as intelligent, gentle and entertaining animals with an enormous appetite for insects. They pose little health risk to man.

Ignorance and sensational media coverage continue to fuel the myths, but if you're interested in the truth about bats, says the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation, consider the following facts:

Bats are not the frequent carriers of rabies that people think they are. "It is safe to say that the incidence of rabies among bats is not greater than the incidence of rabies in other wild animals," Dr. Denny Constantine, widely recognized as the world's foremost authority on rabies and other diseases in bats, told National Wildlife.

One bat out of a thousand carried rabies, says Constantine, and in the past 30 years only ten people in the United States have contracted rabies from bats.

"Many more people are killed annually by dog attacks, bee stings, power motors or lightning than have been killed by rabid bats over the last 30 years," says the magazine. Bats are not by nature aggressive. Healthy bats do not attack people, according to a survey of all available records. One scientist who has banded some 200 species of bats in 20 countries for more than 23 years told National Wildlife he had never seen an aggressive bat.

Nor had any of his colleagues ever been attacked by a bat. Stories that describe squadrons of bats attacking humans simply aren't based in fact, according to the magazine.

Bat droppings are not dangerous sources of respiratory diseases, such as tuberculosis. "There is no evidence to suggest that bats ever transmit tuberculosis to man," said Constantine.

Although bats have also been accused of transmitting the fungal disease histoplasmosis, this rare disease is not usually traceable to bats because the fungus can't survive in the hot, dry attics where bats live.

Instead, histoplasmosis usually flourishes in bird roosts and chicken coops in the humid southeastern United States, according to National Wildlife.

Bats are not dirty animals likely to infect homes with dangerous parasites. Bat researchers agree, says National Wildlife, "that you just can't see dirty bats in the wild."

Like many mammals, bats work hard at keeping themselves clean. And parasites that feed on bats are specialized; they rarely pose any threat to humans.

Poison is the worst possible means of getting bats to leave human living quarters. If you really want to get rid of bats, says National Wildlife, the best way to do it is to seal off all the entrances to their roosting sites—the holes and cracks that give the tiny animals access to attics.

Using pesticides poses a real threat to human health, says the magazine, despite the fact that many pest control companies promote the practice and circulate sensational literature about the dangers of bats.

And even through the United States Environmental Protection Agency has warned against the use of a pesticide commonly used on bats—Rozol—20 states still permit the use of this anticoagulant to poison bats.

The truly enlightened homeowner may even want to consider keeping bats around. Europeans build bat-houses in their backyards so they can take advantage of these insect-eaters. Bats can snag up to 500 insects an hour.

But even if you can't bring yourself to cultivate a bat population in your attic, at least refrain from slandering these gentle animals. As National Wildlife tells it, they've unfairly suffered the slurs and abuses of their human neighbors for too long.

SELL PRODUCE TO SUMMER CAMPERS

Even if you don't have a garden of your own, you can make some extra cash this summer by selling fruits and vegetables to campers in your area. In fact, two of our readers from Tennessee, Gail Palmer and her friend Carol Lea, recently netted nearly $35 a day by loading up their mini-pickup with produce from a local farmers' market and "hawking" it at nearby campgrounds.

The two entrepreneurs discovered that variety and quality are crucial to a successful fresh produce business. And a warm, welcoming attitude, which includes taking enough time to jabber a bit with buyers, will bring folks back to your food wagon for repeat orders. Timing is important, too. The partners found that late afternoon—from 3:00 p.m. until dark—was the best time to catch people at their "homes'away from home."

Because they already had an in-town business of their own, the two women were a jump ahead of most people who might want to try a venture of this sort. All the legalities and technicalities—such as securing city and county licenses, and learning about liability insurance and sales tax requirements in the state—had already been dealt with. So, unless you're in a similar situation, you'll need to check with your city or county officials about the necessary paperwork.

Besides obtaining permission from the owners and managers to sell in their campgrounds, you'll have to gather some basic equipment before starting your business. A set of scales is a necessity, as are paper bags... especially if you sell by the pound. Gail and Carol found that the two most useful bag sizes were No. 6 (which holds about six pounds) and No. 16 (for the larger produce, such as cantaloupes or corn). You'll need to have change on hand, of course, and it can be carried in an inexpensive cloth carpenter's nail bag that's tied around the waist (our enterprising readers started each day with enough paper money to convert a $20 bill plus $10 worth of coins). Bushel baskets, used for display, can usually be purchased at the farmers' market. The women found that a cover for the back of their pickup helped keep the produce fresh in the hot summer sun... and some homemade outwardly tilted shelves helped to show off their wares.

Items that need little or no preparation sold best for the two peddlers: Peaches, grapes, bananas, apples, plums, cantaloupes, watermelons (in smaller sizes and already chilled), tomatoes, corn, and onions were popular. Also, regional foods, such as a local variety of honey, enticed vacationers.

When pricing your merchandise, first find out the costs for similar goods at local grocery stores and then try to sell for a little less. Gail and Carol's general policy was to double their money on items sold by the pound and to add a $1.00 markup on per-unit items such as watermelon or honey.

SLR Is Great For Closeups

When people talk about the big advantage of SLR (single lens reflex) cameras over other camera types, the most frequently cited example is interchangeable lenses. But amateur photographers and, especially, beginners often fail to realize exactly how important that feature can be. Some people even view the interchangeable lens ability of SLRs as a detriment. After all, they reason, changing lenses must be complicated—something more to learn about an already complex subject.

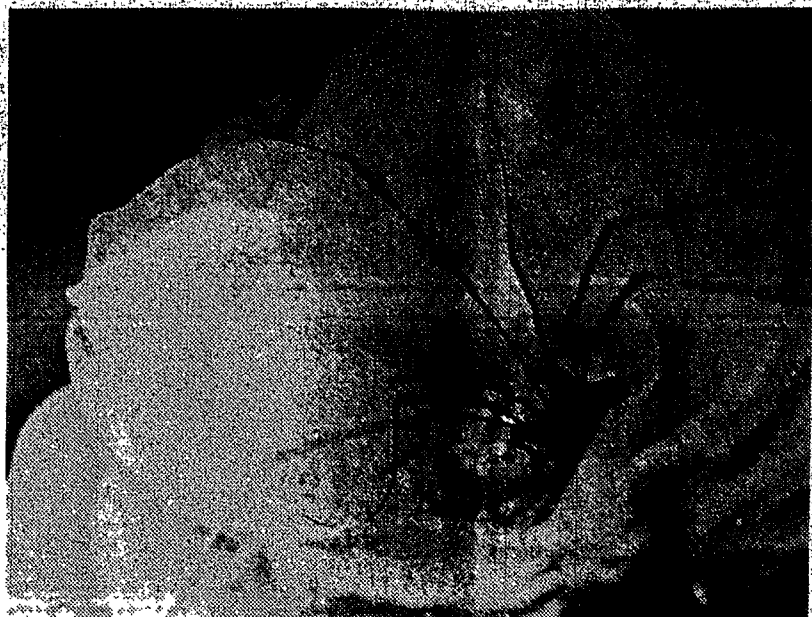

Why not buy a simple cartridge-loading camera or a 35 mm compact, like a rangefinder or zone focus model with only one lens? After all, cameras originally had only one lens. Whoever heard of a Brownie that accepted a telephoto zoom?

Ahh, but lens interchangeability can make a world of difference to a photographer—whether seasoned pro or novice. It's impossible to take close-range photographs from more than 10 or 15 feet away using a camera with a non-interchangeable normal lens. If you're into sports photography, you'll need an SLR with a telephoto lens in order to fill the frame with your subject.

Of even greater value to many photographers, though, is the SLR equipped with macro, or closeup, lens. Unlike a telephoto, which takes distant subjects and enlarges them, a macro lens takes closeup subjects and enlarges them, often to the point of 1/2 or even full life size.

Now, picture that for a moment. Most one-lens cameras will record an inch-long subject like a honeybee about the size of a small grain of rice on film. Perhaps a fiftieth of the frame will be subject, and the rest of the area will consist of weak and distracting background and foreground.

With a 1:1 macro lens mounted on an SLR,

Closeup photos of tiny subjects—like this spider on a dew-covered rose—are practical only with an SLR and the right lens.

though, an inch-long honeybee will be recorded as an inch-long image on film. Nearly half the frame will be composed of the subject, with little distracting background and foreground included in the scene. Talk about dramatic!

But you don't have to be a nature freak to find value in a macro lens. It's a great tool for taking closeup, detailed shots of inanimate subjects, too—coins, stamps, jewelry... anything that catches your eye.

And even more good news! A macro lens is actually more than a closeup lens. It focuses from near the front lens element for extreme closeup photos all the way to infinity. So you can use a macro lens like a super-normal lens. A 50 mm macro will do everything a normal lens will do and more.

In fact, whenever possible, I advise people contemplating the purchase of a new SLR to buy the camera body and macro lens instead of the normal lens most salespeople will want to sell. It costs a bit more, but it's so much more versatile.

Working with a macro lens instead of a normal lens isn't especially tricky, although there are a couple of things to remember. The first is that a macro lens will likely be slower than a normal lens—meaning it lets in less light at its maximum aperture. While a normal lens may have an maximum aperture of f/1.4, a macro will likely be no faster than f/3.5. That means you'll need more available light—or electronic flash or faster film—to capture certain subjects. It's not a serious problem, just something to be aware of.

Also, when a macro lens is set at its close-focusing distance, it has extremely shallow depth-of-field. What this means in short is that focusing must be critical if your closeup subject is to be sharp. For subjects just a few inches from the lens, it's best to use a tripod and cable release for the steadiest possible support.

LAY STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION SUPPORT URGED

Business and education leaders joined together Monday in Jackson to announce support of a proposed lay state board of education.

Describing the proposed constitutional amendment creating the lay board as possibly "the single most important step that could happen for education in Mississippi," business and education representatives called on voters to support the November 2 general election proposal.

"Establishment of a lay state board of education could well be the single most important step that could happen for education in Mississippi," said Benton Cain, Jackson businessman who is heading the effort.

"And because we know how vital education is for the building of a strong economy, this proposal may prove to be the key to economic growth, as well," Cain added.

Cain was speaking for a lay state board steering committee established by the Mississippi Economic Council. Several business and education organizations, whose participation was invited by the MEC steering committee, joined the news conference held at a Jackson hotel.

In addition to the Mississippi Economic Council, business organizations supporting the lay board proposal include the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, Delta Council, and Mississippi Manufacturers Association. In addition, many chambers of commerce have endorsed the proposal.

Education organizations expressing support were the Mississippi Professional Educators, Mississippi Parents-Teachers Association, Mississippi Association of School Superintendents, Mississippi Association of School Administrators, and the Council of Public Schools.

The 1982 Mississippi Legislature placed the referendum on the November 2 ballot. The proposal would amend the state constitution by replacing the current ex officio state board of education with one appointed by elected state officials. The new board would consist of nine members; five would be appointed by the Governor, two appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, and two by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The members would be appointed to staggered terms, assuring that no governor — after the first appointments — would appoint a majority of the board during his four-year term.

Provisions are also made for geographical and professional representation, with one appointment to be filled by a school teacher and one to be filled by a school administrator. After the first appointments, members would serve terms of nine years.

The amendment also provides for an appointed state superintendent of education, with the new board responsible for the appointment. Presently, the state superintendent is elected. The appointment would be subject to the approval of the Senate, and the superintendent would serve at the pleasure of the board.

"We feel that this appointment would help remove the state's chief public school executive from the field of politics and encourage his or her selection on the basis of professional qualification rather than political influence," Cain said.

Cain noted that several studies — including one by the MEC — have reached the conclusion that Mississippi needs an expanded, lay state board of education as a means of improving education.

"We believe that with the business and education organizations represented here today, Mississippi voters can clearly see that business and education stand solidly behind this constitutional amendment," Cain said.

"We urge all voters to join with us and put the education of future generations of Mississippians in the hands of the people," he said.

Members of the MEC's steering committee, in addition to Cain, are Ted J. Alexander, superintendent of McComb Public Schools; C.D. Galey, Hattiesburg insurance executive; W.W. Gresham Jr., Indianola businessman; Dewey H. Lane, Pascagoula physician; Morris Lewis Jr., Indianola businessman; D.B. Massengale Jr., Pascagoula business executive; Clyde Muse, president of Hinds Junior College; Jack Reed, Tupelo businessman; and Tupelo bank executive Lewis Whitfield.

All of the steering committee members have actively supported MEC programs to improve education in Mississippi.
